

We took time Thursday morning to visit the Osborne cheese factory, and were permitted to watch the process of cheese making. The head man, Harry Hubble, has been at the business nine years and thoroughly understands the art of manufacturing the product. The factory is crowded to its utmost, and is turning out an average of 400 pounds of excellent cheese per day. Under the efficient management of Sell Bros., the cheese-making business in Osborne is attaining remarkable success. They are selling the output in all the towns within a radius of 50 miles.—Osborne Farmer.
